FR. LARRY RICE, CSP

Father Larry Rice may be contacted at chaplain@rpi.edu

In the twenty-first century, most of us are accustomed to special seasonal foods primarily at Christmas and Thanksgiving. But in many parts of the world, for many centuries, the whole year was filled with particular foods for the feast days of the saints.

In fact, they're called Feast Days because it was expected that on those days commemorating the lives of those who have preceded us to God's Kingdom, there would be actual feasting. In cities and villages associated with a particular patron saint, local specialties would be named for that saint. Often these dishes would be served only on those saints' days, and would include ingredients or shapes associated with those saints.

Of course, there are saints associated with the culinary arts. St. Honoré is the patron of pastry chefs and confectioners, although it's unclear why the sixth century French bishop is so honored. But the traditional Gâteau St. Honoré is a culinary triumph: a choux pastry crown of cream-filled profiteroles topped with caramel and candied flowers. The patron saint of cooks is St. Fortunatus, another sixth century bishop, who was also a poet and musician who penned the well-known Latin hymn Pange Lingua. The founder of modern French cooking, Auguste Escoffier, named a dish after him: a suckling pig stuffed with chestnuts, barley, sausage, herbs, and liver. I think I'll stick with St. Honoré.

My own patron saint, St. Lawrence deacon and martyr, was martyred by being roasted on a gridiron. The patron saint of restaurateurs, he has many dishes associated with his name. I usually celebrate his August 10th feast day with a simple barbecue.

SPIRITUAL SEEDS

Sustainability Studies, Earth Day and our Common Home

Did you know that RPI offers courses in Sustainability and students can either major or minor in it? Courses range in topic from "Environment and Society" to "Consumer Culture", and include courses related to philosophy, justice and politics of design and as well as technology. Steeping our next generation in courses like these is good news for our Common Home!

Question for us to bring to prayer: in what ways are each of us being called to deepen our ethic of sustainable living?

Upcoming Events:

Baccalaureate Masses will be held next Sunday, April 28th at both 10am and 5pm. We will recognize and honor those students who will be graduating this May, and distributing honor chords in accordance with their involvement in liturgical ministries of our parish, Newman Fellowship, Knights, ESTEEM, and weekly Bible study.

Graduating students poster display at C+CC: be on the lookout for the faces of our University parish students who will be graduating this May. Thank you Christine Relyea and Paula Rohl for putting it together!

Last Spring Semester Tuesday Nite Newman: April 23rd. See Discord for sign up

Students: mark your calendars and plan to stay after 10am Mass next Sunday, April 28th to say Farewell to Father Larry before you head home for summer break! Cake will be served.
